

Petar Piljek is Ph.D. student in the field of Mechanical Technologies and research assistant at the University of Zagreb, Faculty of Mechanical Engineering and Naval Architecture (FAMENA) at the Department of Technology. In 2010 he received his M. Sc. Degree in Mechanical Engineering in field of Computer Aided Engineering from the University of Zagreb.

Currently he is involved in teaching several core courses at undergraduate level (Fundamentals of Technology, Technology I, Production Technologies, Production Techniques...)

His research interests include conventional and micro forming processes, micro manufacturing .

He published 7 papers and conference proceedings .

He received The Faculty Medal for Academic Achievements from Faculty of Mechanical Engineering and Naval Architecture in 2010.